Seizing Victory from the Jaws of Deterrence: Preservation and Public Memory of America's Nike Air Defense Missile System

by
John Knute Smoley

“This dissertation explores the historic preservation and public memory of America’s Nike air defense missile program. To defend against nuclear attacks delivered by Soviet bombers in the 1950s, 60s, and 70s the United States constructed a massive air defense network, the largest peacetime dispersion of America’s military might into its communities.”

I discovered this document on the PH-15 Nike Base website Bristol (Newportville / Croydon) Pennsylvania. This document is a PHD dissertation as described within, and is used here with appreciated permission by the author.
